

Great Solutions for your Products

BioColor is a division of South Pole BioGroup, a problem-solving and customer orientated company. We have the technical skills to provide unique solutions to the food, cosmetic and pharmaceutical manufacturers world-wide.

BioColor's success, together with its recognized technical superiority and meaningful service have given it recognition as a superior supplier.

Since its beginnings, the company has focused on the development of proprietary know-how in key technologies for the stabilization, emulsification and encapsulation of the chromophores and natural color blends. This continued in-house research has allowed the creation of color formulas that are capable of giving the best technical and most cost-effective natural color solutions covering all the pH, color, and solubility ranges.

At BioColor we are able to give a world-wide service through well-established and highly recognized local agents around the world.

We are always willing to work with and guide the manufacturers, and provide consistent quality at the best value. We are a growing organization with strong convictions toward innovation and service.